

When you sponsor the

22nd Cartoons & Cocktails

you support young journalists and press freedom and reach Washington's fans of politics and political cartoons at the region's largest auction of original editorial art

Thursday, October 22, 2009

at the National Press Club

Cartoons & Cocktails is an annual auction of editorial cartoons made possible through generous donations of original* cartoon art by prize-winning cartoonists. Please join us Oct. 22, 2009, at the National Press Club for an evening of food, drink and high society, a fantastic opportunity for collectors and admirers of cartoon art to acquire new works and help good causes. The entire proceeds of the sale go to the following beneficiaries.

Young D.C.

Young D.C. is an independent, teen-produced newspaper that reaches up to 25,000 readers with each issue. It is the voice of a diverse group of teen journalists from the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia, who get training opportunities and hands-on experience with journalists and communication professionals. The 18-year-old nonprofit organization awards book scholarships to qualifying senior editors and offers a unique national scholarship of $1,500 for an aspiring editorial artist to thank the cartoonists who make Cartoons & Cocktails possible.

Cartoonists Rights Network International

Cartoonists Rights Network is a U.S.-based international nonprofit organization devoted to helping editorial cartoonists who face censorship, imprisonment, intimidation — sometimes even death — due to their commentary. Each year, several CRNI clients donate cartoons for Cartoons & Cocktails.

*Some award-winning cartoonists are creating all their work electronically. Their C&C donations are limited-run prints with original signatures.
